Mr. Washburne, though free to go, has decided to remain, under the belief that his friendly offices might be serviceable in soothing the rigors of war when the capital should fall, as a violence and disorder so general as to disit was anticipated would soon happen. The consul (Mr. Read) has availed himself of the privilege by the department to quit his post a his own discretion. There was a weekly mail allowed to go through the Prussian lines from our legation, so that in regard to communication the restraint has been comparatively limited. The

-In the month of September, 1869, charges were published in the New York papers alleging mismanagement, fraud and corruption in the adairs of the Methodist Book Concern in that city. Much scandal and commotion were produced by these allegations among the members of the Methodis Episcopal Church, and the assistant agent, Rev. John Lanahan, who gave currency to these charges of irregularity, was severely censured by many, while on the other hand a large proportion of the church membership supported him in what they called his effort to reform abuses. In consequence of the excitement occasioned among Methodists over the matter, it was decided to bring Mr. Lanahan to trial for having developed this condition of affairs, or for having asserted that they existed in the Book Concern. His trial before the book committee and a number of bishops of the Methodist Church is now progressing in New York, and is arousing much interest among Methodists. Mr. Lanahan's friends declare that this prosecution is a persecution of him instigated by those whose fraudulent practices in connection with the Book Concern he exposed.

-The death of Very Rev. Henry Aiford, D. D. Dean of Canterbury, in London, is announced by cable. He was well known as a poet and biblica writer, and was born in London in 1810, where he died. He was educated at Trinity College, Cam the person and property of every and any citibridge. His first effort in verse was a volume en titled "Poems and Poetical Fragments," published at Cambridge in 1831, to which succeeded, in 1835. "The School of the Heart," and other poems, in two volumes. In 1834 Mr. Alford was elected a Fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge, and 1835 to 1853 was Vi ar of Wymesweld, Leicestershire. where he added to the slender income of his bene fice by taking pupi's. In 1941 he published chapters on the poets of Greece, was Hulsean lecture in the University of Cambridge in 1841 and 1842, and examiner of logic and natural philosophy in the University of London in 1841 to 1857. Mr. Alford published his first volume of the Greek Testament in 1841, and since then four more, the last of which, completing the work, appeared in 1861. The former volumes have passed through many editions. He was also author of several volumes the officiating minister of Quebec street Chapel, where he enjoyed a high reputation for eloquence. In 1857, on the death of Dean Lyall, he was appointed by Lord Palmerston to the deanery of Canterbury.

-The history of Ruloff, the murderer, who was last Friday sentenced to be hanged at Binghamton, New York, is very singular. He is now a man of sixty-five years of age, and, so far as can be ascertained, his first step in crime was taken only twenty-six years ago, when he had almost reached the age of forty. He is a scholar of unwas not only a lawyer, but also a physician and mechanic, and skilled in all three professions. His wife and child disappeared twenty-six years ago, and he was put on trial for abducting them of his child, and was convicted, but, before sen tence was passed, the judgment was overruled and he was discharged, because no body had ever been found. In all these cases, as well as when he has been tried subsequently for other offences, he has acted as his own counsel, and conducted his affairs with great skill. On offence, he gained the good-will of the fallor, who made him the tutor of a In reward Ruloff led the young man

The young man was drowned in crossing the river with the third burgiar, and Ruloff was thus the only one of the three left to be brought nto court. Much of Ruloff's history is unknown, but some facts of his late career have come to light. On two occasions he has defended his own accomplices in New York County courts, under an assumed name, acts of bold defiance which must stand almost alone in criminal history. In his room in New York City were found not only a quantity of burglars' tools, but a half-finished reatise on the grammars of nations, written by his hand. The feeling of the people in Blughamton against this literary bandit was so strong, that his acquittal was impossible from the first, and there was an avowed purpose to lynch him if the most unfavorable verdict was not recorded against him; and yet in the face of such hostility he defended himself as calmly as if he were the paid counsel of a stranger.

Governor Scott's Special Message.

Governor Scott is carrying out in good faith the promises made at the time of his re-election as Governor of South Carolina. In his annual message to the General Assembly, delivered in December last, he pledged himself to make every legitimate effort for the restoration of harmony to the disturbed opinion of this State and for the recognition by all classes in the State of their mutual dependence and common interest. Close upon the heels of these handsome declarations came the reports of outrages in the upper part of the State. The houses of inman was brutally murdered by the negro militia; a deputy sheriff, while in the discharge of his duty, was fired upon and killed. A band of disguised men broke into the county jail, took out five of the negroes implicated in the murder of a white man, shot two of them to death and mortally wounded a third. Nor were tales wanting of attacks upon the colored people by masquerading whites. These occurrences caused serious Union and Spartanburg counties, in public meeting, pledged themselves to bend all their energies to the work of discovering the culprits and of preventing the continuance of deeds at variance with enlightened public sentiment and counter to the highest interests of the State. In the meanwhile, the upcountry Radicals, joined by the incendiary leaders of the sea-board negroes, raised a howl of indignation, laying all the blame upon the whites, demanding that martial law be proclaimed in the offending counties, preaching the bloody gospel of fire and weak and feeble official, who had not the brain to know his duty, nor the nerve for its discharge. Threats of impeachment were bandied to and fro. A concurrent resolution, haughty in words and insulting in tone, was hurriedly passed and presented to the Executive. His answer is the special message printed yesterday-an answer which disposes of the wild charges made against him, while it proves that the Executive is resolved to uphold the prerogatives of his high

Governor Scott tells the members of the General Assembly that he has no informstion of anything like "a county organiza-"tion, to defy, or to defeat, the law." prompt and impartial administration of justice in Abbeville and Edgefield proved that the civil power was sufficient for the protecmilitia force at the command of the Executive which would be competent to suppress arm the power of the civil courts. Every effort has been made to discover the criminals and bring them to trial, but "the Ex-"ecutive is without the power, as he ought "to be without disposition, to interfere with "the due administration of the law." These are, indeed, noble words. Governor Scott says distinctly that not a single case has been reported in which the officers of the law have been resisted in the discharge of their duties." He adds: "There is no invasion which I am called on to repel: no insurrection which I am called on to 'repress." Yet, colored "General" Whipper and colored Congressman-elect Elliott demand that they be allowed to lead three thousand coast militiamen to root out rebellion and stamp out disorder. Governor Scott meets in the proper spirit the declarations made by "the responsible and influen-"tial citizens" of Laurens and Spartanburg, and, in the repression of lawlessness, proposes to apply unflinchingly "all the power of repression" which he can lawfully exercise. His expressions, moreover, in regard to the use of an armed force for the public protection have the ring of the true metal. He says : "It is my opinion that the civil law of the State ought to be sufficient, and it is my determination that it shall be sufficient to protect zen of the Slate, however humble, friendless or obnoxious. I cannot bring myself to contemplate the use of an armed force to punish individual violations of the law in a time of profound peace. Such a remedy would be as bad as the disease, and would be a public declaration that there was no civil government in South Carolina, and that we are living in a condition of social anarchy. I am bound by my oath ot office as the Executive of this State, and in reverence of those principles of constitutional liberty which are the vital force of true Republicanism, to see that the law is duly enforced before I resort to other and dangerous powers. I dare not and will not assume that justice cannot be administered, until the effort has been made and the failure evident." The recommendations of Governor Scott, of a more complete and efficient organization of the machinery necessary for the administration of criminal fustice, will doubtless receive an early attention. The modifications proposed appear to us to be prudent and reasonable. We cannot, however, avoid the reflection that Governor Scott himself is largely responsible for the lack of "ability, " discretion and courage " on the part of the usual attainments, and, previous to his fall, he | Trial Justices, of which he makes complaint. These Trial Justices were appointed by him -in ignorance, we hope, of the patent fact that not one in ten had any other qualificabut escaped. Then he was tried for the murder | tion than the ultra-Radicalism of his political creed. Governor Scott can himself do much towards reforming this part of the

The special message breathes a spirit of candor, of liberality, of fair-dealing and, for profitable market gardening is receiving even, of magnanimity, which is worthy of due recognition in the public mind, and the one occasion, when incarcerated for some all praise. It is more than we had a right proper attention to the timely hints afforded to expect, and everything that the Conservative citizen can desire. For the first time astray. trate of the whole people of South Carolina. And we are confident that every right-thinking man will gladly accept the olive-branch extended to him. The welfare and peace of the State tower above the schemes and plots of party. This is a generous and a lawabiding people. We are confident, therefore, that Governor Scott, in the honorable, dignified and just position which he has taken, will receive the cordial support and earnest co-operation of the white citizens of the State.

"He that fights and runs away, May live to light another day." These lines, generally attributed to "Hudibras," are really much older. They may be found in a book published in 1656. The same idea is, however, expressed in a couplet published in 1542, while one of the few fragments of Menander, the Greek writer, that have been preserved embodies the same idea in a single line. The couplet of "Hudibras" is :

Which he can never do that's slain."

"Hell is paved with good intentions," though found in Johnson and Herbert, was obviously in that day a proverbial expression. Walter Scott ascribes it to some "stern old divine."

"There is a good time coming," is an expression used by Sir Walter Scott in "Rob Roy," and has doubtless for a long time been a familiar saying in Scotland.
